DCC Program Overview

Developing Cultural Competence

An open attitude is the prerequisite for engaging in the continuous learning process of developing cross-cultural effectiveness.

Self-awareness facilitates our other-awareness.

Cultural knowledge, in turn must be translated into cross-cultural skills to achieve cross-cultural effectiveness.

To become useful self- and other-awareness must be grounded in cross-cultural knowledge.

GTI uses the TMC/Berlitz Cultural Orientations Model as our guiding framework for teaching and discussing culture. Cultural competence is the perpetual process for individual growth in successfully navigating culturally diverse situations and working with people of other cultures.

The virtual course includes four live 90-minute classes plus a self-paced learning module and reflective exercises (3 individual + 1 group).

Students should prepare to spend 2.5 hours per week for our course.
